ONE MORE NIGHT RIDER INDICTMENT.

Grand Jury Finishes Up Its Good Work Thursday.

EIGHT TRUE BILLS IN ALL

Mat Gholson Case Is Set For Trial To-day--Wood Case Unsettled.

The grand jury re-convened Thursday and held a brief session and after returning five more indictments, making 80 in all, adjourned sine die. Some new business was taken up, but the farmers were impatient to get into their corn planting and the body finally decided to adjourn and let the investigation be finished by the grand jury to convene June 1.

One of the new indictments was for complicity in the raid on Hopkinsville. The man indicted is a prominent citizen whose name will not be given out until he is arrested. The other indictments were for minor offenses. One was against Link Hurst, who is accused of obtaining money under false pretenses from an old man named John Barnes. Barnes was robbed of his pocket book, containing $30, and Hurst went to him and claimed to be a detective and collected 50 cents from him for alleged expenses in finding the robbers. He is in jail.

Robert Wood, who was given a jail sentence of 3 months and a fine of $100 for sending a threatening letter to a negro named Lewis Dawson, has decided to fight his case further and on Thursday filed a motion for a new trial.

R. N. Wolfe and others vs. Jennie M. Wolfe and others. Sale of real estate ordered.

The Smith-Benshaw injunction case was called yesterday afternoon, but the court decided to hear it the first thing this morning, before taking up the Gholson case.

Jim Weaver Indicted.

Among the last indictments returned by the grand jury was one against Jas. M. Weaver, charged with being in the raid on Hopkinsville. He was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Cravens, at his home on the T. H. Harrel place near Fairview, which he recently bought. His defense will be an alibi. He claims to have been at Weaver's Store, Tenn., the night of the raid. He executed bond for $1,000.

Gholson Case To-day.

The case against Mat Gholson for confederating is set for to-day. He will be defended by Southall & Son, who have also been retained in one other night rider case, that of Dr. Wallace Durham.

The case of W. P. Winfree, Admr. Thos. Veach vs. L. & N. Railroad, was tried Thursday and judgment for $5,000 rendered in favor of the plaintiff. Veach was a market gardener killed last summer, while driving his wagon across the Twelfth street crossing. The suit was for $25,000.

The case of Marion Russell's Admr. vs. L. & N. Railroad, was tried and verdict rendered in favor of the defendants. Russell was a negro killed while asleep on the track at the Bradshaw crossing.

John Howell and William Holmes, two negroes, charged with sending a threatening letter to Bedford Davis, col., indicted by the grand jury, were arrested Thursday and lodged in jail.

TWO CHARGED WITH MURDER

Of Hedges Are Arrested On a Warrant Sworn Out By His Widow.

THE RIDERS MUST QUIT

Their Carnival of Crime--Plan in Marshal to Intimidate Grand Jury.

Lexington, Ky., March 26.—On a warrant sworn out by Katherine Hedges, the widow of Hiram Hedges, who was shot last Friday night by night riders, Butler McAnahan, Jr., and Andrew Fanning, prominent farmers of Nicholas county, were arrested today, charged with the murder of Hiram Hedges. The Nicholas county Society of Equity, through its president, Herdy Myers, has published a card denying any connection with the murder of Hiram Hedges by night riders.

FIELD NOTES.

Night Riders Are Still Making History for Kentucky.

The independent growers of Jessamine and Madison county have determined to defy the night riders and will this year raise the largest crop of tobacco in the history of the two counties. The high prices in Louisville and Lexington are responsible for the decision of the growers. They are putting out the plant buds.

Night riders quietly visited Owenon early Wednesday morning and fired three big warehouses, one known to be an office, which had 150,000 pounds of tobacco, part of it pooled, and caused a loss of $30,000. No other damage was committed.

Butler McAnahan, Jr., and Henry Fanning, prominent farmers, have been arrested on the charge of the murder of Hiram Hedges in Nicholas county Friday night. Warrants were sworn out by Mrs. Hedges, and it is understood that others are to follow. The men live only a short distance from the scene of the killing. The widow was accompanied to town by at least twenty of her neighbors and friends, who say they will protect her by day and by night with their lives should any attempt to molest her for the steps she has taken.

Owing to the grand jury's investigation of the night riders' raid at Birmingham, the citizens of Benton are in fear of a visit from one of the masked mobs. The town is being guarded and the Governor has been requested to send arms.

Gov. Willson has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of each member of the band of night riders who murdered Hiram Hedges.

CONTROL BOARD OUT OF POLITICS

Gov. Willson Tells Body That Each One Should Get Out of All Committees.

LEAVE OUT SUPERS.

Urges Fair and Economical Administration For All State Institutions.

Frankfort, Ky., March 26.—That their retention as members of the State Board of Control is dependent upon the non-partisan conduct of institutions in their charge was set forth by Gov. Willson to the four men comprising this important branch of the Commonwealth's executive department.

Calling them into conference this morning, the Governor made them an earnest address, pointing out the great anxiety of the people of the State to see the institutions freed from partisan control and calling attention to past abuses on the part of favorites; of political powers. He told them that the law under which the board was to be conducted was adopted in obedience to public sentiment, and in addition to that, it was his earnest personal wish that politics be eliminated entirely from the institutions, and without delay to relieve from duty any whose services were not necessary for the proper care of the institutions; to consider carefully the capability and fitness of all employees, and in every case in which the present incumbent is not the best that the salary can secure, to replace him with the best person that can be secured regardless of politics.

The Governor asked the members of the board to go over carefully the list of officers and employees of every institution, and without delay to relieve from duty any whose services were not necessary for the proper care of the institutions; to consider carefully the capability and fitness of all employees, and in every case in which the present incumbent is not the best that the salary can secure, to replace him with the best person that can be secured regardless of politics.

POLITICS MUST GO.

Gov. Willson further requested the members of the board to exercise the greatest care and watchfulness in every item of expense connected with the institutions and to eliminate all unnecessary expenses and said he should hold it against the will of the people of the State if the member of the board or any officer or employee of the institutions shall continue to be a member of any political committee or shall take any part whatever in any political or partisan campaign except to exercise his right as a citizen to vote and talk about such matters as other citizens do.

He expressly set forth that any assessment, directly or indirectly, in any way of any officer or employee of any institution for any partisan or political purpose would violate the law under which the member of the board held office, and would be held as a serious offense inconsistent with the discharge of the duties contemplated by the act.

Killed at Princeton.

Princeton, Ky., Mar. 27.—A young man named Aubrey Nabb, was shot and killed at 1 o'clock this morning, by Henry Willson, manager of the Opera House. Nabb was shot in the right breast and walked down the steps and fell dead on the pavement. Leach Guest was ascending the steps behind Nabb, who had reached the platform at the top, but did not see the shooting, and details are meagre. Nabb lived in the Otter Pond neighborhood.

Amusements.

The number of people who really live is small compared with the vast number that merely exist. Some people seem to think if they go to one minstrel show that they have seen them all and stop right there. Those are the people that just exist, nothing more.

In the larger cities it is common to meet the heads of families who in figuring on their daily, weekly or monthly expenses, figure that the theater is a necessary expense and a visit each week must be figured on. These people really live, and it is a noticeable fact that the same habit is spreading into the interior.

Go and see them all if you can afford it; if not, pick out those that have the mark of age in their favor, those that have been before the public long enough to know just what are getting. Richards & Prince's Famous Georgia Minstrels that come to Holland's Opera House on Thursday, April 2, will come near filling your expectations.

The Weather.

Probably thunder showers Saturday.

Caleb Powers is said to be ill with what appears to be typhoid fever, in the Georgetown jail.

Gov. Willson approved the bill appropriating $460,000 for the state capital, but vetoed the section retaining Andrews as architect.

Maj. A. H. Sinclair, former Mayor of Georgetown, died in that city. He was prominent in business and was Past Exalter Ruler of the Elks Lodge.

A well-defined rumor has spread through the New York Smart Set that Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and his wife have separated, owing to domestic differences of long standing.

Governor Willson has approved
the bill appropriating $25,000 each to the Western and Central Asylums and $17,500 to the Feeble Minded Institute. He has decided to veto the bill providing for pensions for Louisville school teachers after a certain term of service.

While summoning witnesses for the grand jury investigation in Lyon county, Deputy Marshal Neal discovered a plan of 200 night riders to go to Benton and appear before the grand jury, which is investigating the Birmingham raid, in the hopes of influencing the jury.

"The grand jury of Owen county reported that they could find no evidence against the night riders. This seems to be case wherever night riders appear."—Georgetown Times.
Christian county is an exception to this rule. Here we have officers and juries that are not afraid to do their duty.

Seven Senators have died since June 11, 1907, and one or two more are sick. High living and late hours wear out a good many of our statesmen, but still it is fair to state that four of the seven were more than seventy-five years of age.

An effort on the part of the American Newspaper Publishers Association to secure Legislation by Congress in putting print paper and wood pulp on the free list, has received a sudden shock because of the absolute refusal on the part of the ways and means committee to even give them a hearing.

General Manager F. G. Ewing of the Dark Tobacco Growers' association, is right in his declaration that the work of the night riders will ruin all the good efforts of the tobacco associations. The cause which has to resort to force loses in the end, always. Right will maintain itself in spite of opposition and without the aid of force, for right will rule at all times without assistance of crime.—Paducah News-Democrat.

President Barnett, of the Society of Equity, says his society has only four members in the counties where night riding originated, from which he reasons that the Society of Equity is not to blame for the present lawlessness. General Manager Ewing, of the Planters' Association, has issued an address protesting against the threatened encroachments of "other organizations." Perhaps after a while the organizations may devote their attention to each other

MR. CASEY'S SIGN.

The current issue of the Independent contains this:

"We have been ordered by Mayor Meacham to take down the Independent sign from in front of the Independent office. As we are the only business on this square and several other firms have been allowed to have similar signs hung across the principal streets of the city for months and years—we recall at this moment a sign that hung in front of a trust factory, on a busy street for several years.—We do not know why the order was given, but using the expression of a well advertised food, 'There's a reason.' If we are forced to take down our sign we hope our former friends will find us anyhow."

Mayor Meacham has had no communication with Mr. Casey on the subject. The chief of police has been instructed to rigidly enforce in future the ordinance Mr. Casey violated all last year and is still violating, but to give Mr. Casey temporary permission to advertise his new location until April 1st, before putting into effect the new order, so far as it affects him. Following is the ordinance prohibiting designs
across the sidewalks:

Chap. xxxv, Sec. 25, General Ordinances City of Hopkinsville:
"It shall be unlawful for any person to put up a sign-board or design
over or across any of the pavements
or sidewalks of the city of Hopkinsville, or to permit such to remain
over or across such pavements or sidewalks." The penalty is $10 for each offense.

This order was not enforced rigidly last year. Mr. Casey being the chief beneficiary of the laxity.

"It shall be unlawful for any per-
son to put up a sign-board or design
over or across any of the pavements
or sidewalks of the city of Hopkins-
ville, or to permit such to remain
over or across such pavements or sidewalks." The penalty is $10 for
each offense.

In the course of a bitter denunciation of President Roosevelt on the floor of the House of Representatives, Mr. Stanley, of Kentucky, compared him with Alexander Hamilton, whom he designated as "an adventurer," and both of whom, he said, had profound contempt for the Constitution and displayed everlasting impatience with its restraints.

The books of the Tobacco Association are now open, by a special order from the executive committee. Our advice to every farmer in Christian county is to get into the Association without delay. We have repeatedly urged the tobacco growers to join one or the other of the organizations.

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic damperment this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West
Union, S. C., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:
"I was greatly run-down in health
from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health,
but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardonia, Ky., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration.
Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice.
She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

An Object Lesson.

"Miranda," said the mistress, "you are a good cook, and I just know that you are too good for us to keep any length of time. Some man will come along one of these days and induce you to marry him."

"Oh, no, mum," answered Miranda fervently. "I've lived with you and your husband too long to want ever to get married."

There are two conclusions to be drawn from the reply of the faithful servant. One is that she was loyal to her employers; the other is as it may be.—Chicago Post.

TWO MINUTE SKETCHES

Robert Fulton.

By J. A. EDGERTON.

He lived long enough to become one of the immortals.

ROBERT FULTON'S parents were so poor that the future inventor had scarcely any education, barely learning how to read and write. His father died when Robert was three years old, and at an early age the boy was apprenticed to a Philadelphia jeweler. In addition to his work in the shop, young Fulton applied himself to portrait and landscape painting and showed such talent that he was enabled to keep his widowed mother and in four years bought a farm on which he placed her. He then went to London to prosecute the study of his art as a painter. So strong a bent had he for science, however, that in his odd hours he studied mechanics and engineering. Finally attracting the attention of the Duke of Bridgewater, who was then interested in an extensive canal scheme, Fulton was induced by that gentleman to give up painting altogether and to devote himself to civil engineering and invention.

In the next few years Fulton invented an incline plane for supplanting canal locks, a mill for sawing and polishing marble, a machine for spinning flax and another for making ropes. He also wrote a book on navigating canals and another on the application of steam to navigation. At about this time he attracted the notice of Edward F. Livingston, United States minister at Paris. In response to an invitation Fulton went to that city, where he soon invented a submarine boat, which he vainly tried to have adopted by the French, British and American governments. After his failure in this attempt he returned to his dream of steam navigation and invented a small boat which successfully navigated the Seine. Livingston was so interested that he advanced money to Fulton to come to America and build a steamboat for the Hudson. The result was the Clermont, from whose first trip between New York and Albany dates the beginning of a new era in the water transportation of the world. The Clermont marked the high tide of Fulton's success. He was forty-two years old at the time and lived only eight years longer, having been worn out by the incessant toil of his earlier life. He had lived long enough, however, to become one of the immortals.

But it won't cure it.

You must reach the root of it—the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it; reach the cause; relieve the pain. Mrs. Eva Hobbs, living on North Seminary street, Madisonville, Ky., says: "I have no hesitancy in endorsing the claims made for Doan's Kidney Pills, as they are, without doubt, the best kidney medicine in the world. When they permanently cured me of my trouble in the summer of 1903, I allowed my experience to be published in our local papers so that others who suffer as I did might know what course to pursue to get relief. I was a sufferer for years with terrible pains through my kidneys and down through my loins. There were such bearing down pains at times that I actually had to give up and lie down until the pain subsided. The secretions from the kidneys were irregular in action and painful in passing. I tried remedy after remedy, and wore plasters but received little or no relief. Doan's Kidney Pills made a complete and permanent cure four years ago, and it only required two boxes to do it. I have been perfectly free from any kidney complaint ever since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The family were discussing the coming wedding of the only daughter. "Of course," said the bride to be to her father, "you will give me away?" "I'm afraid I have done it already, my dear," he replied. "I told George only this morning that you had a disposition just like your mother's."

MR. BRYAN'S OPINIONS

The plan of guaranteed bank deposits has probably found favor, among all classes of people and irrespective of political affiliation, more rapidly than any other public question.

The new state of Oklahoma has already enacted a law taxing state banks, the fund thus accumulated to be used in paying the depositors of any state bank that from any cause becomes unable to meet its obligations. A special session of the Kansas legislature has been called for the purpose of enacting legislation similar to the Oklahoma plan. The governor of Nebraska is considering the advisability of calling a special session of the legislature on account of the growing belief among the people that protection to bank depositors in the form of state or federal guarantees of their deposits will stop the hoarding of money, bring into circulation sufficient currency to conduct the business of the country, and prevent a recurrence of such disastrous panics as the one through which we are now passing.

Mr. Bryan has been an advocate of a law guaranteeing deposits in state and national banks since 1893.

Mr. Bryan, in discussing the tariff questions, insists that residents of the United States should be permitted to buy home-made goods at home at as low a price as the foreigner can buy American-made goods abroad. He also insists that our government should be by and for the people as a whole, rather than by and for the trusts, and administered in the interest of a few beneficiaries of the trust system. He believes that national legislation for the purpose of better regulation and control of interstate commerce and common carriers should supplement state legislation, and not be a substitute for state legislation.

Mr. Bryan's paper, The Commoner, reflects his opinions each week on questions of public importance and in its columns may also be found his magazine articles, public speeches, addresses and lectures, which are referred to in the daily press from day to day.

If you are interested in political questions, if you desire to keep in touch with the progress of the campaign and to read Mr. Bryan's campaign speeches send sixty cents to The Commoner, and the paper will be sent to you each week until the close of the next presidential campaign.

Postoffice money order, currency or stamps will be accepted. Only sixty cents. Address The Commoner, Lincoln, Neb.

The Princess Virginia

By C. N. and A. M. WILLIAMSON.
Authors of "The Lightning Conductor," "Rescue in Search of a Father," Etc.

Copyright, 1907, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

Through the gate of dreams lies the fair land of romance into which you would travel, find and welcome relief from the daily grind. Now you are invited to accompany the Princess Virginia, who determines that the royal personage who would honor her with his hand must fall in love with her and woo her as any other man would a woman. Therefore she travels incognito in her realm, meeting adventures strange and full of excitement. You will learn with pardonable pride that the American blood in her veins gives her an independence unheard of in the presence of kings, but most of all you will want to know how she succeeds in her bold undertaking. That you will enjoy every minute of the reading is assured by the verdict of thousands who declare "The Princess Virginia" to be a most delightful story.

When the music ceased no dances for an instant that some accident had befallen the musicians. Then when he realized that the end of the dance had come in its due time he remembered with pleasure a rule of his court established in the days of those who had been before him. After each dance an interval of ten minutes was allowed before the beginning of another. Ten minutes are not much to a man who has things to say which could hardly be said in ten hours. Still, they are something, and to waste even one would be like spilling a drop of precious elixir from a tiny bottle containing but a few other drops.

They had scarcely spoken yet, except for commonplaces which any one might have overheard, since the day on the mountain, and in this first moment of the ten each was wondering whether or no that day should be ignored between them. Leopold did not feel that it should be spoken of, for it was possible that the girl did not recognize the chamois hunter in the emperor, and Virginia did not feel that she could speak of it. But, then, few things turn out as people feel they should.

Next to the throne room was the ballroom, and beyond was another known as the waldma, which Leopold had fitted for the gratification of a fancy. It was named the waldma because it represented a wood. Walls and ceiling were masked with twisting creepers trained over invisible wires, through which peeped stars of electric light, like the check rings of sunshine between netted branches. Trees grew up, with their shadows, glittering on the glass eyes of birds and animals—eagles, stags, chamois, wolves and bears—which the emperor had shot.

This strange room, so vast as to seem empty when Leopold's people wandered beneath its trees and among its grotesque, was thrown open to guests whenever a ball was given at the palace, but the courtiers and palm houses were more popular, and when Leopold brought Miss Mowbray to the waldma after their dance it was the hope that they might not be disturbed.

She was lovelier than ever in her white dress under the trees, looking up at him with a wonderful look in her eyes, and the young man's eyes were mastered by the beating of his blood.

"This is a kind of madness," he said to himself. "It will pass. It must pass." And, indeed, meaning all the while to say something different and commonplace, the real words in his mind broke through the crust of conventionality. "Why did you do it?" Virginia's eyes widened. "I don't understand." Then, in an instant, she found that she did understand. She knew that, but the question had been in spite of him, but that once it had been uttered he would stand to his guns.

"Mean the thing I shall have to thank you for always." If Virginia had had time to think she might have prepared some pretty answer; but, there being no time, her response came, and his question had from the heart, "I couldn't help doing it."

"You couldn't help risking your life to it?" He dared not flinch.

"It was to save. Nor was there any end for her sentence."

Then perhaps it was not strange that he forgot certain restrictions which a royal man in conversing with a commoner is not supposed to forget. In fact, he forgot that he was royal or that she was not, and his voice grew steadily, his tone eager, as if he had been some poor fellow with the girl of his first love.

"There's something a must show you," he said. Opening a button of the military coat blazing with jewels and orders, he drew out a loop of thin gold chain. At the end dangled a small bright thing that flashed under a star of electric light.

"My ring!" breathed Virginia.

Thus did the emperor's intention to ignore the day that had been theirs together.

"Your ring! You gave it to Leo. He kept it. He will always keep it. Have I surprised you?" Virginia felt it would be best to say "Yes," but instead she answered "No," for pretty white silk cannot be told under such a look in a man's eyes by a girl who loves him.

"I have not? When did you guess the truth—yesterday or—"

"At Alleheligen." Leopold fell for a minute, while Leopold digested the answer and its full meaning. He remembered the bread and ham, the cow he could not milk, the rucksacks he had carried. He remembered everything and laughed.

"You knew at Alleheligen! Not on the mountain when?"

"Yes, I guessed even then, I confess. Oh, I don't mean that I went there expecting to find you. I didn't. I think I shouldn't have gone had I known. Every one believed you were at Alleheligen, but when I tumbled down and you saved me I looked up and—of course I'd seen your picture, and one of the papers that you're fond of chamois hunting. I couldn't help guessing. Oh, I'm sorry you asked me this!"

"Why?"

"Because one might have to be afraid of an emperor if he were angry?"

"Do I look angry?"

Their eyes met again, laughing at first, then each finding unexpected depths in those of the other which drove away laughter. Something in Leopold's breast seemed alive and struggling to be free from restraint, like a fierce wild bird. He shut his lips tightly, breathing hard. Both forgot that a question had been asked, but it was Virginia who spoke first, since it is easier for a woman than a man to hide feeling.

"I wonder why you kept the ring after my—impertinence."

"I had a good reason for keeping it."

"You'll tell me?"

"You're quick at forming conclusions, Miss Mowbray. Can't you guess?"

"To remind you to beware of strange young women on mountains?"

"No."

"Because your own picture is inside?"

"Am I not to ask it?"

"On that day you asked what you chose. All the more should you do so now, since there's nothing I could refuse you."

"Not the half of your kingdom, like the royal men in fairy stories?"

As soon as the words were out Virginia would have given much to have them back. She had not thought of a meaning they might convey, but she tried not to blush lest he should think of now. Nevertheless he did think of it, and the light words, striking a chord they had not aimed to touch, were echoing on and on till they reached that part of himself which the emperor knew least about—his heart.

"Half his kingdom? Yes, he would give it to this girl if he could. Heavens, what it would be to share it with her!"

"Ask anything you will," he said as a man speaks in a dream.

"Then tell me—why you kept the ring?"

"Because the only woman I ever cared to unke my friend took it from her finger and gave it to me."

"Now the emperor is pleased to pay compliments to me?"

"You know I am sincere."

"But you'd seen me only for an hour. Instead of deserving your friendship, I'm afraid I don't."

"For one hour? That's true. And how long ago is that one hour? A week or so, I suppose, as time counts. But then came yesterday and the thing you did for me. Now I've known you always."

"If you had, perhaps you wouldn't want me for your friend."

"I do want you."

The words would come. It was true already. He did want her, but not as a friend. His world—a world without women, without passion fiery enough to devour principles or traditions—was upside down.

It was well that the ten minutes' grace between dances was over and the music for the next about to begin.

A young officer, Count von Breitenstein's half brother, who was to be Miss Mowbray's partner, appeared in the distance looking for her, but stopped, seeing that she was still with the emperor.

"Goodby," said Virginia while her words could still be only for the ears of Leopold.

"Good goodby. We're friends."

"Yes. But we shan't meet often."

"Why? Are you leaving Kronburg?"

"Perhaps—soon. I don't know."

"I must see you again. I will see you once more, whatever comes."

"Once more, perhaps. I hope so, but—"

"After that?"

"Who knows?"

"Once more—once more!" The words echoed in Virginia's ears. She heard them through everything, as one hears the undertone of a mountain torrent, though a brass band may busy to drown its deep music.

Once more he would see her, wait, ever might come.

Why it might be only once, though he would have that once again and again repeated, for this game of hers began with such a light heart, was more difficult to play than she had dreamed.

If she could but be sure he cared, if he would tell her so in words and not with eyes alone, she would know why it might be only once, though he would have that once again and again repeated, for this game of hers began with such a light heart, was more difficult to play than she had dreamed.

"Once more!" What would happen in that "once more?" Perhaps nothing save a repetition of grateful thanks and courteous words akin to a farewell.

To be sure, Lady Mowbray and her daughter might run away and the negotiations between the emperor's advisers and the Grand Duchess of Baunenburg-Trippe for the Princess Virginia's hand might be allowed to go on as if no outside influence had ruffled the peaceful current of events. Then in the end a surprise would come for Leopold. Wilfrid Virginia would have given her little coaxingly and all might be said to end well. But Virginia's heart refused to be satisfied with so tame a last chapter, a finish to her romance so conventional as to be distasteful to herself, almost if not quite a failure.

PRESBYTERIAN BROTHERHOOD

Steps Looking to Organiza- tion Taken Thursday Night.

Steps were taken Thursday night to organize a Presbyterian Brotherhood at the First Presbyterian church. There was a large attendance of the male members present, presided over by Rev. E. P. Pull, pastor of the church, who explained the objects of the organization, after which a free discussion was indulged in by many of those present. Twenty-one names were enrolled for membership in the Brotherhood. Another meeting will be held next Wednesday night to complete the organization. After the business closed a banquet was given in the Sunday school room, presided over by a committee of the ladies of the church which was greatly enjoyed by all who were present. After dinner talks were made by Prof. Coyner and Messrs. Allen M. Wallis and Jas. West, Dr. Bull acting as toast-master.

KILLED HIMSELF.

Former Christian Countian Commits Suicide.

Mr. M. D. Keatts, of this place, received a telegram Tuesday night apprising him of the sad news that his brother, E. A. Keatts, of Minidoka, Idaho, had committed suicide by shooting himself. No further facts were given, and relatives here and in Christian county are at a loss to know what could have caused such a rash act.

Mr. Keatts was about fifty-five years of age and unmarried.

He left his home near Lafayette about thirty years ago for the West in search of health, believing that he had consumption. He regained his health and developed into a robust man. His relatives here heard from him regular every two or three months, and he seemed to be getting along well, until the first of last week when one of his brothers in Christian county received a letter from him stating that he needed a certain amount of money, which was small, and unless he received it at once he would end his life. His brothers forwarded him the money by registered letter last Wednesday, and had heard nothing further from him until the telegram Tuesday announcing his death.—Cadiz Record.

Fat Is An Offense.

"The female form being capable of expressing a supreme degree of grace, should be an inspiration in our daily lives and lead up to higher ideals of beauty," said the art lecturer. "Therefore the fat woman is an enemy to the artistic spirit, for she is entirely too heavy for any wings of fancy to raise."

"I can't understand how any woman will remain fat when it is so easy to reduce one's flesh. In the Latin quarter of Paris one never sees a fat woman. Although the art models take things easy, sit around a great deal and eat just whatever they please, yet they keep their flesh firm and their figures beautiful. They have a simple fat reducer that takes the place of starving and gymnastics. It consists of a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of this simple receipt: 1/2 ounce Marmala, 1/2 ounce Field Extract Cascan Aromatic, and 3/4 ounce Syrup Simplex. That's all. Why don't fat, pudgy American women try that? It's harmless—say, very good for them—and will, I understand, take off as much as a pound of fat a day. Any one with a little small change and a drug store handy can have a decent figure."

Anderson's Fashion Show,

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY,
APRIL 1st AND 2nd.

WHAT NEW YORK and PARIS have originated in Millinery and Ladies' Garments, is given accurate and full expression in our Opening Display. Prices are extremely moderate—figured on the actual worth of each hat or garment and not one cent added for style exclusiveness. The two young ladies who have made Anderson's Millinery famous, are still with us—Miss Schroeder as head trimmer, and Miss Annie Cayce as head saleslady; the one, born with an inspiration to trim and create hats—the other, a prodigy in the art of salesmanship—with a power to select becoming and wearable hats that is truly wonderful.

These two young ladies view, with pardonable pride, the success of this department, and promise more intelligent service than ever before. Come to the Opening, Wednesday and Thursday, April 1st and 2nd.
